Early Life and Artistic Foundations

Childhood and Cultural Roots

Jerome Robbins was born Jerome Wilson Rabinowitz on October 11, 1918, in Brooklyn, New York, to Jewish immigrant parents from Russia and Poland. Growing up in a diverse, immigrant-heavy neighborhood, Robbins was exposed to a rich tapestry of cultural influences that would later inform his artistic sensibilities. His father, a dentist, and his mother, a homemaker, fostered an environment where music and storytelling thrived.

From a young age, Robbins exhibited a fascination with movement and performance. He was an energetic child, often channeling his vitality into dance. His early exposure to various dance forms, including tap and ballroom, set the stage for his future versatility. Recognizing his potential, Robbins's parents supported his pursuit of the arts, and he began formal ballet training at the age of 10.

Formal Education and Artistic Influences

Robbins attended the School of American Ballet (SAB) in New York City, where he trained under the legendary George Balanchine. Balanchine's innovative approach to ballet, emphasizing speed, musicality, and expressiveness, profoundly influenced Robbins's aesthetic. Under Balanchine's tutelage, Robbins developed a keen sense of movement, rhythm, and storytelling through dance.

During his years at SAB, Robbins also immersed himself in modern dance and theater, blending classical ballet with contemporary styles. This hybrid approach would become a hallmark of his choreographic style. His early choreographic work was characterized by a keen sense of narrative, precise movement, and an ability to evoke emotion—traits that would define his later masterpieces.
