cahiers du cinema 1960 68 new wave new cinema re e

The period between 1960 and 1968 stands out as one of the most revolutionary eras in the history of cinema. Marked by artistic innovation, ideological shifts, and a burgeoning youthful energy, this era saw the emergence of the French New Wave?la Nouvelle Vague?a movement that challenged traditional filmmaking conventions and forever altered the language of cinema. Central to this cinematic revolution was the influential publication Cahiers du Cinéma, whose editors, critics, and filmmakers played a pivotal role in shaping film aesthetic and theory during this transformative decade. This article explores how Cahiers du Cinéma from 1960 to 1968 became a catalyst for the New Wave, the cinematic innovations that defined this era, and the enduring legacy of this period in film history.

The Foundations of Cahiers du Cinéma and Its Critical Philosophy

Origins and Evolution of Cahiers du Cinéma

Founded in 1951 by André Bazin, Jacques Doniol-Valcroze, and Joseph-Marie Lo Duca, Cahiers du Cinéma began as a modest French film magazine dedicated to serious film criticism. Initially, it championed classical French cinema and Hollywood filmmaking, but by the late 1950s and early 1960s, it had evolved into a fertile ground for avant-garde ideas and revolutionary thinking about the art of cinema.

The magazine's critical philosophy was rooted in André Bazin's theories, emphasizing realism, mise-en-scène, and the importance of the director as an auteur?a creative artist with a distinctive personal style. Bazin believed that cinema could elevate the everyday and that the camera's capacity for capturing reality was central to its artistic potential. This philosophical stance became a foundation for many of the ideas propagated by Cahiers's critics and filmmakers during this period.

The Critics as Filmmakers: The Birth of the Auteur Theory

One of the most significant contributions of Cahiers du Cinéma was the development of the auteur theory. Critics like François Truffaut, Jean-Luc Godard, Claude Chabrol, Eric Rohmer, and Jacques Rivette argued that certain directors possess a singular vision and style that merits recognition akin to that of a novelist or painter. They proposed that by analyzing recurring themes, stylistic signatures, and personal motifs, viewers could appreciate films as the products of individual artists.

This theory shifted the cinematic critique from mere genre analysis and entertainment value to a deeper appreciation of personal expression, aligning cinema more closely with high art. It also inspired a new generation of filmmakers to see themselves not just as technicians but as auteurs with unique voices.

The Political and Cultural Context of 1960-1968 France

Socio-Political Climate and Its Influence on Cinema

The early 1960s in France was a period of intense social change. The post-war economic boom, the rise of youth culture, and the influence of global political movements created a fertile environment for artistic experimentation. The Algerian War, the rise of student protests, and the questioning of authority permeated intellectual and cultural life, deeply affecting filmmakers and critics alike.

This climate of upheaval and rebellion found expression in the films produced and championed by the Cahiers critics-turned-filmmakers. They sought to challenge the conventions of mainstream cinema, which they viewed as commercialized and disconnected from contemporary realities.

The Impact of May 1968

While the upheaval of May 1968 is often associated more broadly with French society, its echo within the film world was profound. The movement's emphasis on anti-authoritarianism, individual freedom, and societal critique resonated with the ethos of the New Wave directors. Films from this period became more experimental, politically engaged, and reflective of the revolutionary spirit sweeping across France.

The Emergence and Characteristics of the French New Wave

Key Films and Filmmakers

The French New Wave was characterized by a handful of pioneering directors whose works challenged conventional storytelling and technical standards:

- Jean-Luc Godard: With films like Breathless (À bout de souffle, 1960), Godard pioneered jump cuts, breaking narrative continuity, and a casual, improvisational style that reflected the youthful rebellion of the era.
- François Truffaut: Known for The 400 Blows (Les quatre cents coups, 1959), Truffaut focused on personal stories, childhood, and social critique, emphasizing emotional authenticity.
- Claude Chabrol: Often called the 'French Hitchcock', Chabrol explored bourgeois morality and social mores.
- Eric Rohmer: His films, such as The Sign of Leo (Le signe du lion, 1962), emphasized dialogue-driven storytelling and moral questions.
- Jacques Rivette: Known for experimental narratives like Paris Belongs to Us (Paris nous appartient, 1961), Rivette pushed the boundaries of storytelling.

Common Aesthetic and Thematic Traits

The New Wave filmmakers shared several stylistic and thematic traits:

- Innovative Editing Techniques: Jump cuts, long takes, and montage challenged traditional continuity editing.
- Location Shooting: Preference for real locations over studio sets to enhance realism.
- Natural Lighting and Improvisation: Use of available light and spontaneous dialogue to create authenticity.
- Self-Reflexivity and Intertextuality: Films often acknowledged their own artifice, referencing other films or breaking the fourth wall.
- Focus on Youth and Rebellion: Themes of youthful angst, rebellion against authority, and personal freedom.
- Political Engagement: Many works reflected the social upheavals and questioned societal norms.

Cahiers du Cinéma's Role in Promoting the New Wave

Critical Support and Advocacy

Cahiers du Cinéma was instrumental not only in critiquing mainstream cinema but also in promoting the works of the emerging New Wave directors. The magazine's critics became filmmakers themselves, directly translating their ideas into films. For example:

- François Truffaut's The 400 Blows was initially reviewed positively by Cahiers critics before he directed it.
- Jean-Luc Godard's Breathless was championed by Cahiers and became a defining film of the movement.

The magazine also published essays and interviews that articulated the theoretical underpinnings of the New Wave, fostering a shared intellectual framework.

The Influence of Criticism on Filmmaking

The close relationship between critique and filmmaking created a feedback loop:

- Critics-turned-filmmakers experimented with new techniques inspired by their theoretical writings.
- Their films, in turn, validated and expanded the critical theories, reinforcing the movement's coherence.
- Cahiers provided a platform for debate, reflection, and dissemination of ideas that shaped cinematic innovation.

The Legacy and Impact of 1960-1968 French Cinema

A New Paradigm in Filmmaking

The innovations introduced during this period revolutionized filmmaking worldwide. Techniques such as jump cuts, location shooting, and a focus on personal auteurism became standards in global cinema.

Influence on International Cinema

The French New Wave inspired filmmakers across the globe, from Hollywood directors like Martin Scorsese and Quentin Tarantino to Japanese auteurs such as Nagisa Oshima. The movement's emphasis on personal voice, experimental techniques, and social critique became a universal language of cinematic rebellion.

The Enduring Relevance

While the initial fervor of the New Wave waned by the early 1970s, its influence persisted. Contemporary filmmakers continue to draw upon its techniques and philosophies, emphasizing innovation, authenticity, and the personal vision.
